History. The use of no-knock warrants is a product of the country's "war on drugs" launched by President Richard Nixon in the 1970s, and which gained momentum in the 1980s under President Ronald Reagan.].Legal authority. English common law has required law enforcement to knock-and-announce since at least Semayne's case (1604), and in Miller v. United States (1958), the Supreme Court of the ...

Midnight was the tenth episode of series 4 of Doctor Who. It was the first "companion-lite" televised Doctor Who story. As such, it explored a rarely touched on topic where, without his companion, the Doctor struggles to gain the trust of strangers; his commanding presence uniquely backfires, with the crew turning against him rather than siding with him. It also featured the third abrupt cameo ...

If there's a theme among the white rares of Innistrad: Midnight Hunt, it's this: aggressive mana costs. On her own, Adeline, Resplendent Cathar hits the battlefield as a 1/4 for three mana, which would be underwhelming except that in the worst case scenario she instantly becomes a 2/4 in the attack step, with a 1/1 companion swinging a sword right next to her.
