Differentiation Formula for Trigonometric Functions

The six trigonometric functions also have differentiation formulas that can be used in application problems of the derivative. The rules are summarized as follows: 1. If $f(x) = \sin x$, then $f'(x) = \cos x$. 2. If $f(x) = \cos x$, then $f'(x) = -\sin x$. 3. If $f(x) = \tan x$, then $f'(x) = \sec^2 x$. 4. If $f(x) = \cot x$, then $f'(x) = -\csc^2 x$. 5.

Differentiation of Trigonometric Functions - YouTube

The differentiation of trigonometric functions is the mathematical process of finding the derivative of a trigonometric function, or its rate of change with respect to a variable. For example, the derivative of the sine function is written $\sin' = \cos$, meaning that the rate of change of sin at a particular angle $x = a$ is given by the cosine of that angle. All derivatives of circular trigonometric functions can be found from those of sin and cos by means of the quotient rule applied to ...

Some of the most common transcendentals encountered in calculus are the natural exponential function e^x , the natural logarithmic function $\ln x$ with base e , and the six trigonometric functions (sine, cosine, tangent, cosecant, secant, and cotangent). The derivatives of each of the functions are listed below:
