A homeland is the concept of the place where a cultural, national, or racial identity had formed. The definition can also mean simply one's country of birth. When used as a proper noun, the Homeland, as well as its equivalents in other languages, often has ethnic nationalist connotations. A homeland may also be referred to as a fatherland, a motherland, or a mother country, depending on the ...

The Back-to-Africa movement was based on the widespread belief among some European-Americans in the 18th and 19th century United States that African Americans would want to return to the continent of Africa. In general, the political movement was an overwhelming failure; very few former slaves wanted to move to Africa. The small number of freed slaves who did settle in Africa—some under ...

African is a term which umbrellas all the indigenous ethnicities of the African continent. Therefore an African is exclusively a person of the indigenous ethnic groups found on the continent of Africa or in the African Diaspora. All Africans are identified politically as Black people, however Blackness is a color and not adequate in terms of ethno-geo-political identity to refer to African people.
